ASSISTANT PROF. KNIGHT WINS HEALTH & WELLNESS GRAPHIC DESIGN AWARD

The logo design for the “Spread Love. Not COVID. Vaccinate” campaign created by Prof. Jeff Knight, NDSU Department of Visual Arts, won a Health+Wellness Award from Graphic Design USA. This campaign, supported by the Center for Immunization and Research in NDSU’s Department of Public Health, was made possible through a grant from the CDC and North Dakota Department of Health and Human Services. The aim of this state-wide campaign was to encourage COVID-19 vaccination among North Dakotans. Prof. Knight’s logo design emphasizes the importance of vaccination in keeping social connections strong and uses the state’s outline to appeal to North Dakotans .

Graphic Design USA is a national source of information for graphic designers and advertising creatives. Graphic Design USA supports a variety of national design competitions including the Health+Wellness Design Competition.

SPREAD LOVE,

NOT COVID.

SODAAHAUS STUDENT FELLOWSHIP RECIPIENTS ANNOUNCED

Students in the graphic design emphasis track of their Art Degree were given an opportunity to submit their resumes and samples of their work as part of a search for this year's SoDAAHAUS student fellows.

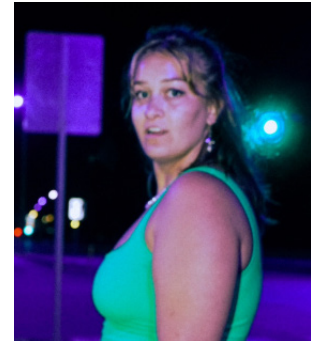

This year is the second year SoDAAHAUS has been operating and creates design work for clients, both internally on campus, and externally on opportunities in the local region.

Winnie Weninger, Sydney Ulrich (first semester), and Morgan Chandler (second semester) were selected based on their creative dedication and overall commitment to pursuing engaging graphic design.

Updates will be made at a later time to announce what SoDAAHAUS is working on, or has completed, over the course of this 2023-24 academic year.
