MU GALLERY

The Memorial Union Gallery at North Dakota State University is pleased to present new work from NDSU's Master of Architecture Program curated by Dr. Stephen Wischer.

These heavily conceptual works distill a wide range of values, philosophies, historical references and personal interpretation to convey the essence of a complex issue. While independent and engaging objects, these artefacts are one part of much larger inquiry into how these student's can create more informed and integral structures that consider space, situation and purpose.

A STUDENT DESIGN COMPETITION

How would you design and build a residence for a particular client based on specific design guidelines?

Well, that's the challenge Year Two Architecture Design students from the NDSU Department of Architecture had with designing and building a birdhouse for a particular bird species based on the specific characteristics of a renowned work of architecture.

Architecture for the Birds is a student design competition sponsored by F9 Productions (Colorado) and an exhibition presented by the NDSU School of Design, Art, and Architecture (SoDAA) and hosted by West Acres Mall. The exhibition is open from March through early May 2024.

Vote for your favorite birdhouse design by scanning the QR code and selecting the Student ID number labeled on the poster associated with the birdhouse design.
